Acrylic Pouring

Welcome to the beginning of what will be the most fun, relaxing and magical art form you'll ever create! Acrylic Pouring (or Fluid Art) is such an enjoyable way of creating art that offers the fun and amazement of watching your masterpiece form before your very eyes!

This unique technique of acrylic painting leaves you with one of a kind results. No brush, no pallet. Simply pour and watch the effects and cells come to life. In this course, we will learn how to combine common household materials such as glue, WD-40, silicone, and acrylic paint to create an eye-catching work of art! You will be amazed and have such a rewarding creative experience making works of art on a variety of surfaces, using a variety of techniques, ingredients, and tools!

Learn more about the class by visiting my website! This class requires many materials and gallons of paint!! In order to offset the cost of supplies, there is a $25 supply fee which can be paid by following this link: https://cynthiamulvaney.webs.com/portfolioand-unm-classes for the many supplies which I will be providing.

I also have a list below of surfaces you will need to bring to the class (ie: canvas, canvas panels, wood panels which have been primed with white paint to seal the wood) I suggest sizes of 8x10, 11x14 or 12x16. Walmart (in store or walmart.com) has a 3 pack of 12x16 for only $5.97! You can get 50-75% off coupons on their websites/apps for purchases at Hobby Lobby and Michaels where you can get great discounts on canvas/panels there, too! I suggest getting 10 surfaces to pour on. We’ll be very busy and do so many fun and beautiful techniques. The paintings we complete will most likely still be tacky when you leave for the day so I would suggest making a ‘carrier.’ It’s easy, here’s how: take a box and cut notches going down the sides of the top. Then, if your paintings are wet when you leave the class, you can slide each one into an opening and they’ll travel without touching!
